The CAP should play a role both in reducing negative impacts on the environment and climate, including biodiversity, and also in increasing the provision of environmental public goods – on all types of farmland and forest land (including high-nature-value areas) and in rural areas as a whole. The architecture of the CAP should therefore reflect greater ambition with respect to these objectives. It should include elements which support or otherwise induce a wide range of action in pursuit of the objectives – within agriculture, food production, forestry and rural areas as a whole. The best combination of types of action for addressing these objectives will vary from one Member State to another. Concurrently with the need to increase efforts on adaptation to climate change, reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and enhanced carbon sequestration, that are both important in mitigating climate change.
