

On behalf of the Frontex Presidency of the JHA Agencies Network, it is my pleasure to share with you the draft agenda of the first JHAAN event this year – on-line seminar “Understanding the influence of climate change on Justice and Home Affairs”, which is scheduled for 16 February. We are pleased to announce that many internationally recognised experts agreed to participate and share their knowledge with the JHA community.

We would like to kindly ask you to disseminate the agenda internally and send us the names of the participants from your respective Agencies and entities by 4 February eob. There is no particular limit to the participation, but we wish to ensure good connectivity and active engagement. Moreover, we encourage the nominated participants to attend all panels, as we wish to facilitate a multidisciplinary discussion and see the key issues from various angles. We would also like to remind you that Agencies, mentioned in the agenda, are expected to make 5 minutes interventions after the panellists’ presentations. We would appreciate if the listed Agencies could confirm their contribution to the discussion, as foreseen. Other entities/Agencies are also invited to intervene and can be added to the agenda, should you only wish.

Taking this occasion, we would like to mention that after the event Frontex will share a message about the seminar in social media. We invite all of you to consider re-sharing the message, showing the Agencies’ joint work and commitment.

Connection instructions will be shared with you in due course.

If you have any inquiries, do not hesitate to contact me with JHAAN@frontex.europa.eu in Cc.

Best regards,
